A Call to Alumni Service

Fellow Alumni:

As a tree is judged by its fruit, so is the University judged by its alumni. The strength, power, influence and rank of any institution is graded by its product—its alumni. To-day I am making an appeal to the most loyal body of men in the country, the alumni of the University of North Carolina. An appeal which is based upon the knowledge of your loyalty and devotion to Alma Mater. I am asking for the hearty co-operation and loyal unselfish support of each of you in making the effort to help build the University into the finest, best and most respected institution of learning on earth. An institution which in its influence and sphere of action and achievement will reach into the lives and homes, hearts and hopes of every man, woman and child in North Carolina. A center of learning which will be the pride of the State and the controlling power and basic influence in making our State the finest commonwealth of the Union and its people a contented, educated and happy democracy.—WALTER MURPHY, '92.

The University produces men. These men in turn produce a greater University than that which produced them. Thus, an mending cycle enlarging, enriching and deepening the lives of both the University and her alumni at its every revolution.

Ten thousand of us have been giving unstinted support to our alma mater with only the urge of a profound devotion. But there has inevitably been lost motion, however loyal we may have been. There has been a lack of concerted effort.

Public service, accomplished through fine men, is the first and great mission of every educational institution. Our alumni group is the connective between the University and the public. If we are to enable the University to continue to serve the State and its people in strains that are in keeping with its century and a quarter of loyal service, then there must be no lost motion. There must be a channel through which the little loyalties of each of us can be expressed.

And so the call today is to the ten thousand men whose mecca is Chapel Hill, whose love is for the University, and whose passion is for a greater service to North Carolina, to come together in a concerted effort, allowing the loyalty and devotion of each of us, however small and seemingly unimportant when left alone, to mingle into a veritable torrent that all of us together shall turn back into the University of North Carolina enabling it to maintain its high prestige in the nation, and to turn out year by year generations of greater and greater men.—D. L. GRANT, '21.

OPINION AND COMMENT

The 127th Commencement

The 127th commencement has gone down in history—the sort of history that should cheer every alumnus and spell greater things for Alma Mater and the State which she serves.

Just what the record contains may be hazy in the minds of some, but certain facts stand out prominently. (1) The largest number of graduates (192) ever sent out into the life of the State marched out of Memorial hall with their diplomas on June 14. (2) The note of sincerity in baccalaureate sermon and address has rarely sounded clearer than in the utterances of Lacy and Glass, the commencement speakers. (3) Never has there been more unity of purpose on the part of faculty, trustees, and alumni to make the University a great commanding power among the institutions of higher learning. (4) And never have alumni who left home and office and pressing engagements to revisit the Hill spent a happier day than Alumni Day, June 13. Time may have been when 13 was an unlucky number, but this time the alumnus played in hard luck who stayed at home rather than the one who made the pilgrimage back to the Hill

Alumni Day

Elsewhere the story of Alumni Day is told in glowing fashion. But the editor cannot pass the day by without saying one word about it, namely, that in his experience of twenty-two years, it was the up-standing, out-standing, top-notch of its kind. The class of '21, skilled in making it short and snappy, spilled the pep all around. Classes like '97 and '02, with the coeds and pharmacists, came back in landslide numbers. Colonel Cox, presiding genius, kept the wheels turning in the direction of SOMEWHERE! The menu servers spread a peach of an alumni banquet unmarred by long-winded speech-making. Frank Winston, conductor par excellence of class reunions, and Frank Graham, generalissimo of stunts on the athletic field, were mirth-providers of the right sort. Marshal "Bob" Hanes and Acting-Secretary Rankin, handy men with the lubricating can, kept the whole program perfectly oiled. And the reception on the lawn at twilight, the reunion banquets from 7 to 9, and the performance of the Playmakers from 9 to 11, filled out a day fit for a king.

But the finest thing of all was the getting together of the group into a welded, fighting organization. A constitution that will work was adopted. A president and a secretary who will lead the Association to finer achievement were elected, and a command, clear-ringing and compelling, was issued—alumni, forward!

Your New Officers

Walter Murphy, '92, president; C. L. Weill, '07, first vice-president; R. H. Wright, '97, second vice-president; Dan Grant, '21, secretary—there, fellow alumni, are the officers of your choice for 1922-23.

We do not know how they look to you, but to us they are of the real hand-picked variety. "Pete" Murphy has a record of thirty years of brilliant service to Alma Mater. "Charlie" Weill, as president of the Chamber of Commerce of Greensboro in 1920-21, was a wheel-horse in the higher educational campaign of 1921. "Bob" Wright, captain of the varsity in '96, begins a second quarter of a century of service to Carolina and the State. "Dan" Grant, editor of the Tar Heel, 1920-21, student leader, inter-collegiate debater, director of the campaign for students throughout the State in 1921 and 1922, cherisher of the spirit of Alma Mater and visualizer of her future, dedicates himself to her service and calls upon you to a man to rally to her cause.

There they are, a splendid quartet of leaders. And leadership, fellow alumni, if successful, means, in this instance, ten thousand united, purposeful followers!

Alumni Program

Although no formal alumni program has been announced for the coming year, it is abundantly evident that the new administration of the Alumni Association will put its hand to at least three distinctive undertakings.

First and foremost of these is the erection of the Graham Memorial building. Plans are now being drawn for the building and $50,000 in additional subscriptions is immediately needed together with the unpaid amounts already subscribed, to insure the construction of the first unit.

The second major undertaking is the building of the new hotel. From 1000 to 1500 alumni will be asked to contribute a minimum of $100 to insure membership in the club feature of the program, thereby securing from $100,000 to $150,000 to put into the building.

The material enlargement of the Alumni Loyalty Fund constitutes a third objective. Insurance policies written in the interest of the fund will be encouraged, and the alumni group as a whole will be called on to contribute to this splendid cause.

Keeping Up

All of which calls for another word. The Trustees, particularly through their Building Committee which has met for days and days each month in projecting the building program, have set a fine example in sustained thought and application to duty. The administration and faculty, in similar way, have resolutely met the thousand problems whether educational or otherwise, which have confronted them. The student body, subjected in 1918 to the rigors of the S. A. T. C., and cramped since then almost beyond endurance through sheer lack of physical quarters, has maintained and passed on to the succeeding classes the fine ideals of the University. In putting their hands to the tasks enumerated in the preceding paragraphs, the alumni, the fourth constituent part of the University, have shown their determination to keep up with the three other members and thereby do their full part in supplementing and enriching the life of the campus.

Beautifying the Grounds

Another undertaking which enlisted the interest of the alumni during commencement was the beautification of the University grounds. At the meeting of the Alumni Association Dr. W. H. Atkinson, of Washington, spoke for the appointment of a permanent committee to have charge of the matter, and at the reunion meeting of at least one of the classes—'97, we believe—the matter received further consideration.

Unquestionably Carolina has a campus of unusual natural beauty. It has also been demonstrated that artistic planting and careful attention to shrubs and walkways yield beautiful results as in the case of the Aboretum. We recommend the suggestion most heartily and trust that out of it, through alumni assistance, will emerge what Dr. Atkinson happily termed the "campus beautiful."

Trees and Flowers and Running Brooks

In this connection, however, we have one further suggestion—let the beautification take the form of trees and flowers and running brooks, or, in lieu of running brooks, beautiful walks. Somehow or other there is a "failing" on the part of a lot of us for monuments or seats or other formal, cold inanimate things. These, doubtless, have their place, but they can well afford to follow after the trees and flowers and walkways have been provided.

Gifts During the Year

From time to time, THE REVIEW has mentioned various gifts received during the year. Among the donations we recall at this moment are: the Graham Kenan Foundation in Philosophy; the gift of John Sprunt Hill of the hotel site and $10,000 in money to advance the hotel project; the gift of $1000 by the same person to continue the upbuilding of the North Carolina collection of the Library; gifts of files of North Carolina papers from Dr. James Sprunt, Mrs. Henry A. London, W. W. Scott; gifts of manuscripts, books, and papers from J. A. Warren, Mrs. Julia Graves, James C. Taylor; the establishment of the Marvin Carr Medal, by Gen. J. S. Carr; the addition of $1000 by the class of 1912 to the Alumni Loyalty Fund; the presentation of a portrait of President Graham to the Di Society by a group of alumni under the leadership of Archibald Henderson, George Stephens, Ben Cone and C. J. Williams, etc., etc. Unfortunately THE REVIEW does not have the complete list at hand. But it makes appreciative mention here of the thoughtfulness which prompted these and all the other gifts received.

This it does and something more. It stops long enough to commend the people, who, while still living, take from their possessions to make Carolina to abound in those things which enrich the lives of the students who pass this way.

The record, we think, is a fine one. But we still wait to chalk up the name of the alumnus or friend who will put a real piano in Gerrard Hall, or the proper sort of pipe organ in Memorial Hall, or buy the second collection of musical works or the first collection of colored prints for the Library, or give any one of the fifty or hundred or thousand other things of which the campus is today in need.

The other day we heard that President Burton, of Michigan, had urgent need for $5000 to underwrite some special program on the Michigan campus. Not having it in hand, he turned to his radio battery and sent out the word to the alumni, with the result that in three minutes some alumnus who happened to be listening in, said that the check for the amount desired would reach the University on the morning mail. Something like that is what we have in mind.

Ten Years of The Review

With this issue THE REVIEW completes its tenth year.

If, at the end of these ten years, THE REVIEW may say one word about itself, it is this: In spite of all our faults and handicaps here, your solid support, fellow alumni, has put THE REVIEW in a position to be adjudged "among the foremost alumni journals in the country."

A second word is this. For all our faults, we know that for the ten years, day in and out, we have striven for the unity of alumni activity, for the evolving of an alumni program, for the bringing into existence, through the informed support of Carolina men, a greater, finer University. We have labored that we might be the common rallying point from which all the forward-looking sons and daughters of Alma Mater should go forth to do battle in her name.

Although the pioneer alumni journal among the universities of the South, THE REVIEW has much pioneering yet to do. Without your continued solid support, it will fail in its great responsibility to you and the University. Its answer to the challenging decades ahead rests in no uncertain quarter. It rests with you!

About Pictures and Things

There is another word we wish to say before we turn to the new decade in which your support of us is going to be finer and more intelligent than in the past. It is a word about the members of our staff. As we look forward to the greater challenge ahead, we are thinking of those members of the editorial staff who, during the ten years passed, whether at home, in camp, on the battle's front, always, with the thought of binding Alma Mater and her sons more closely into one great common service, have done their editorial bit.

And at this particular moment we are thinking of that silent member of the staff who, in the ten years, has probably not written ten printed lines, but whose annual giving in that time for pictures of campus scenes to stir and warm your hearts—his check for $100 for this purpose in 1921-22 now lies before us—runs well nigh up to four figures!

To these men, for their unceasing, fine endeavor, for their unflinching, high devotion to the cause both yours and ours, we say for you and us—here's to them!

Two Fine Agencies for Enhancing the University's Reputation Established

Two matters in which all friends of the University can justly take pride are the incorporation of the University of North Carolina Press and the establishment of The North Carolina Law Review. Both undertakings, descriptions of which are to be found elsewhere in this issue, have long been needed, both should receive the heartiest support of the alumni, and should go far to enhance the scholarly reputation of the University.

The Year in Athletics

Athletically, 1921-22 has been a most unusual year for Carolina. Championships in basketball, baseball, and tennis have been splendidly won, and, barring the loss of the game to A. & E., the football record was of the most satisfying sort.

Viewed in another light, the year has also been unusual. Never has the campus been thrown into greater turmoil than at Thanksgiving by the controversy between the University and her ancient rival; and rarely has there been more interest shown in the question of eligibility standards than that recently aroused by the passage of a rule, later rescinded, by means of which the faculty hoped to lessen the evils of summer baseball.

Other distinctive features have been the direction of all athletic activities by the Fetzer brothers; the entrance of the University into the Southern Conference; the placing of track athletics on a new basis; the resignation of Dr. Charles S. Mangum from the chairmanship of the faculty committee on athletics after years of devoted service, and the appointment of Dr. A. W. Hobbs, of the department of Mathematics, as his successor.

Do the Trustees Meet Frequently Enough?

Two comments were on the lips of all alumni who returned for commencement: The first expressing amazement at the vastness of the change wrought in the physical aspect of the campus; the second expressing commendation of the Building Committee through which the change had been effected.

A third comment, or rather question, raised frequently enough to justify consideration here, was Do the Trustees Meet Frequently Enough? The thought lying back of the question is easily discernible. From 1850 to 1900 two meetings a year were certainly enough to take care of an institution which erected one building, say, in every ten years. Possibly two meetings annually sufficed during the period 1900 to 1920 when one building a year, approximately, was projected.

But what about an institution that spends from $600,000 to $700,000 annually for maintenance, draws plans for seven new buildings in a biennium, and at the same time witnesses the projection of two churches and the Graham Memorial Building on its front, of another church on its flank, and of a 40-room hotel at the west gate of the campus?

Here, it would seem to many, is a situation which rightly demands more frequent meetings of the directorate of the institution, and certainly a more definite contact (such as the Building Committee has) which can only be acquired by actual presence on the campus.

It isn't our question, but we recognize it as a good one and pass it on!

L. A. Williams Goes to California

It is with sincere regret that THE REVIEW records the resignation of Dr. L. A. Williams, professor of School Administration in the School of Education since 1913, who goes to the University of California in September to fill a like position in that institution. During the ten years of his stay in Chapel Hill, Professor Williams has contributed to the development of the School of Education and the Summer School, has promoted various activities in the Division of Extension, has been a constant contributor to the High School Journal, and has made a number of important surveys of educational situations in North Carolina communities. Altogether his service has been of the most constructive sort, and the University and the teaching profession of North Carolina will suffer a distinct loss in his going.

Fallen on the Foreign Field

In the death of William Hoke Ramsaur, '10, the University has lost a noble son, the North American Student Movement a crusading volunteer, and the Christian civilization of the west a torch bearer who counted it an opportunity to lay down his life among the black folk of Africa. Hoke Ramsaur came to the University from China Grove in 1906. He was a boy of character, spirit, and shining face, marked from the beginning for spiritual heroism. As president of the University Y. M. C. A., as general secretary at Alabama, as secretary of the North American Student Volunteer Movement, as ordained Episcopal clergyman in a Philadelphia mission center, and as missionary to Africa, Hoke Ramsaur had compressed noble and intense service within the years of his devoted youth. In him the University and religion have been extended and vindicated in heroic proportions. The class of 1910 has lost a man honored and loved among all who knew him.

Class Records to the Fore

That a finer alumni enthusiasm is moving among the classes and groups which return to the University for Alumni Day, that the bond between former classmates here under the oaks is the sort of thing which the alumni show an increasing desire to strengthen and intensify, is strikingly evidenced in the Record of the Class of 1902, issued by Louis Graves, secretary of the class, and the Handbook of Women Students in the University of North Carolina, 1897-1922, issued by Miss Louise Venable, '20, chairman of the reunion committee of the Woman's Association of the University.

Both publications are full of the sort of information that brings to mind days on the campus in former years, and they add definitely to the permanent information which the University has of these two bodies of honored sons and daughters.

ALUMNI DAY FEATURES COMMENCEMENT

Certain high standard events mark every commencement such as President Chase's report of the year's work, Professor Horace Williams' farewell to the seniors, Parson Moss' vesper valedictory under the oaks, and Dr. Archibald Henderson's presentations for honorary degrees. The commencement of 1922 is marked off with distinction by virtue not only of these but also because of Dr. Ben Lacy's fighting baccalaureate, the Honorable Carter Glass' clear exposition of the Federal Reserve, Judge Winston's emergent wit, Jack Apple's keenly humorous class statistics, Miss Nina Cooper's triumphant prophecy, Bryant Brown's Mangum Oration and victorious plea for the faith and idealism of the shattered Wilson and the lamented Graham, the trustees' resolution to build a soldier memorial hospital and four-year medical college at Chapel Hill, the quarter of a century anniversary reunions of women and pharmacists, and most of all by an Alumni Day that featured commencement with a bang.

Tuesday, June 13th, the alumni took over the University. From the morning moment when Chief Marshal Robert M. Hanes, '12, gathered the cheering, singing, shouting reunion classes into Gerrard Hall for the general alumni meeting and demonstration right on through reunion responses, alumni luncheon, games, stunts, reception, and banquets, until the curtain fell on the last delightful scene in "Dogwood Bushes," the alumni stirred the University with the liveliest day of the year.

President Cox Keynotes and President Chase Reports

The general alumni meeting was directed with dignity, grace and despatch by President Albert L. Cox, who in his presidential address struck the alumni keynote of optimism and progress. President Chase in his clear-cut annual report summarized the year's building achievements: fourteen dwelling houses, railroad extension from Carrboro to the new buildings, Memorial Hall converted into a usable and adequate auditorium, power plant improved, new class athletic field, four new dormitories almost completed, history building begun, plans finished for language and law buildings. "But," he continued, "this is just the beginning. Our hands must not slacken nor our spirit fail until the task is done.

"It is not only sound business," he said, "but it is essential if the University is to keep abreast of the demands upon it. This year, during the regular session, our enrollment has been 1,688. This growth has been steady since the low-water mark of 1917-1918, when, because of the war, only 855 students were in attendance. The University is double its size in 1917-1918.

"There are no indications whatever that the growth is to be checked. You need only recall how the high schools in your own communities are growing, how they are crowded, needing expansion, to realize that the sources of supply are steadily increasing. Check the increase in your own high school, multiply that by several hundred, and you will realize something of the task we are up against."

President Chase told of the plan to start work soon upon the Graham Memorial building, which is to be a student center. Something over $100,000 has been collected and pledged for this, but it is necessary to raise $50,000 more.

"If you saw here, day by day, as some of us see, what such a center would mean to the place," the speaker said, "in terms of friendship and unity and social life, I believe every man of you would go as deep in his pocket as he possibly could to make this building adequate to its purpose.

Faculty to Aid Freshmen

"As for personal contacts of a somewhat more systematic sort, we are taking an important step next fall, in installing a system of faculty counsellors for freshmen. I need not remind you how critical is a man's first year in college, nor what a readjustment it often involves. A plan looking to the division of the freshman class into small groups, each with a counsellor on the faculty, a man who will maintain intimate human relationships with his group, was presented to the faculty the other day, and already enough volunteers have agreed to undertake the work to insure its success for next year. The plan differs in several respects from that tried several years ago, and I am confident will produce valuable results.

"Again, a great deal of hard thinking has gone this year into the question of revising our whole educational plan, in ways that will send out the student thoroughly equipped to face the new and more complex life of today and tomorrow. Such work takes long and patient thought, but I do want you to know that we are all alive to what after all is the center and core of our responsibility, and that thinking about educational problems is going forward systematically and in a promising way."

L. R. Wilson Reports on Memorial Building

Dr. L. R. Wilson, reporting for the committee on the Graham Memorial Building, said that the University Inn site had been chosen as the place for the building, that $123,000 had been subscribed and of this $63,000 collected, that one unit of the building was to be erected now at a cost of $150,000, and other units to be added as need developed. Dr. Wilson said the people had magnificently come to the support of the University, that the students had bridged over the breakdown between war and peace, and that the building of a student center building was now the distinct responsibility to be coveted by the alumni.

Miss Mary Henderson Responds for Women

For the alumnae returned to celebrate the twenty-fifth year since women were admitted into the University, Miss Mary Henderson of Salisbury pledged their loyalty and affection for alma mater. In their name and in the name of the increasing number of women students she called for a worthy woman's building. Miss Henderson's charm of address and wit, and her stories of the experiences of women students here made the hit of the general alumni meeting.

I. W. Rose Represents the Pharmacists

For the alumni of the Pharmacy School, eighty-five of whom were back to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the department of Pharmacy. I. W. Rose, '06, president of the State Pharmaceutical Association, brought greetings to the University and the general alumni on the occasion of the first reunion of the Pharmacy alumni.

New Officers

For the committee on official election returns H. M. Robins reported the results as follows: President, Walter Murphy, '92; first vice-president, Charles L. Weill, '07; second vice-president, Robert H. Wright, '97. President Cox introduced the officers-elect amid great applause.

Charles L. Weill for the committee appointed to choose a full-time general secretary reported the nomination of Daniel L. Grant, '21, who was immediately elected by acclamation. In answer to an enthusiastic demonstration led by the class of 1921, Mr. Grant made a happy address of acceptance. The manner of his acceptance of the responsibility vouchsafes the alumni's acceptance of him.

Report on the War Memorial

At the call of Chairman Josephus Daniels and in the absence of Dr. Hamilton, Louis Graves reported for the committee on the war memorial to the University men who died in service during the world war, that the committee recommended a memorial tablet, a memorial record, and a memorial grove.

Other important business transacted was the adoption of the new constitution and the passage of a resolution eloquently proposed by Dr. Wade Atkinson of Washington (whose son graduated with the class of 1922) that a committee be appointed and an endowment be raised for permanent beautification of the campus. President Cox appointed on this committee Dr. Wade H. Atkinson, of Washington, D. C.; A. H. Patterson, of Chapel Hill; and Lionel Weil, of Goldsboro.

Class Reunions

At this point President Cox called to the chair Judge Francis D. Winston, presider extraordinary and introducer plenipotentiary. Judge Winston was never happier and never wittier as he snapped the meeting along and moved from class to class and speaker to speaker who in quick succession made talks now serious, now humorous, and now eloquent, but all shot through with fighting loyalty and affection. Bobbitt, '21, winner of the Mangum Medal last commencement for his masterly oration, "Edward K. Graham, Builder of the New University", came from his Charlotte law office to make Gerrard Hall ring again with words that plighted the faith of the class of 1921. S. I. Parker, '17, whose reckless wounds won the D. S. C. in the Argonne Forest, voiced in simple words the spirit of the University men who left class room for training camp. Fred Drane spoke for the class of 1912 and incidentally brought cheering news from a University mission front in Central Alaska. John Johnston Parker, '07, whom Judge Winston introduced as a man who could be introduced to any North Carolina audience without comment and who could speak without the five-minute limit, in eloquent words paid tribute to the spirit of the University and its influence in North Carolina. R. R. Williams, '02, varsity football player, intercollegiate debater, overseas captain, and speaker in the citizens mass meeting before the appropriations committee on behalf of state institutions last March; David Baird Smith, '97, first intercollegiate debater to represent the University and brilliant speaker; Walter Murphy, '92, of that famous eleven whose record of five games and no substitutes in one week is unbroken on the American continent, champion of the University, state institutions, and public education at all times and against all comers; Charles Worth, '82, known in college and the forty years since as a modest man of good deeds; and Major T. S. Webb, '62, reported killed in the battle of Shiloh and to whom a memorial tablet now stands in Memorial Hall—all these men responded for their classes and made the reunion gathering one of the feature occasions of a feature day.

The Class of 1862

The boys of 1862 who rushed from a peaceful University retreat into the thick of the greatest war that ever shook the western world were the constant pride of the men of 1922. When they came into Gerrard Hall and were ushered to the platform by Chief Alumni Marshal Hanes, the alumni body rose as one man and made the old hall shake with the thunder of their cheering tribute of honor to these men who by their valor made the name of the Confederate soldier forever honored among brave men and whose redemption of a shattered civilization is today an example and a challenge to a world broken and in ruins. Besides Major Webb, Col. W. B. Fort of the Confederate Navy, and Hon. Sylvester Hassell, a pioneer educator in the resurrection of the south, made addresses, reminiscent and advisory.

The Alumni Luncheon

The Alumni Luncheon was attended by a crowd that taxed the hall. It went off with delightful despatch. Col. Cox was at his best in keeping things moving. Short talks compressed with the philosophy of that old Roman "Sawney Webb," the connotations of character in the voice and words of J. C. B. Ehringhaus; the ringing tribute of Major and Solicitor-elect L. P. McLendon to Francis Preston Venable, inventor of the Bunsen Burner and promoter of science, scholarship, and sound learning as the solid foundations on which President Graham carried the University to the people; and the fighting words of two fighting men, R. R. Williams and Walter Murphy, all junctured in a luncheon enjoyable for its compact talks, its efficient service, and its pleasing music. The talk of "Sawney" Webb caught the alumni. His character, service, and thought spoke to them as they had spoken to generations of youth whom he trained and inspired for their work of building a great new civilization beyond the Appalachians. "You talk of present day progress," he said, "but you'll find that the foundation is laid in one age and the superstructure comes at a later time. When I was here in college they didn't teach us to hear speeches in Pittsburgh and Chicago but they tuned our minds to the cadences of Homer and Virgil, and bless the memory of the old gentlemen who turned our minds to logarithms and parabolas. In that day they laid the foundations for this splendid progress. No building, no material progress can ever substitute for genuine manhood and the University gave men in those days as it must today."

Enter Emerson Field

The alumni then marched to Emerson Field. Three ball games were played: 1921 vs 1917; 1912 vs 1902; 1922 vs faculty. Bob Winston knocked a home run, Joe Cheshire caught three flies in right field, Ivey Lewis relieved "Railroad" Williams but the slaughter by '12 continued, and Paul Green pitched with both hands, terrible with either. But the games lively as they went, were merely the rackets on which were hung the events and stunts of the afternoon. Umpire Nathan, 300 pounds plus, was derrieked to give place to an umpire who was more circumspect with his telescopes. But the new ump got in bad with the class of 1922 who bodily knocked his props from under him while George Watts Hill majestically drove upon the field with a two-horse hearse to encompass what remained of him. Standing on the hearse and facing the two stands Garland Porter delivered such a classic funeral oration over the late empire that Mark Antony was moved to wish that Julius Caesar had been a real empire instead of a mere would-be emperor. Cy Thompson was rushed on the field as emergency empire on a step-ladder de luxe.

The Black Brigade

Out of the woods and behind the hedge fence to the south emerged a dark cloud that soon strung out in a single file march of negroes long known and loved by University men. Around the field they swung, cadenced to the band that welcomed them across. The three wagons which led the procession drew up alongside, the marchers advanced in perfect step carrying broom, basket, tray, shoes, axe, shovel, saw, wheelbarrow, scythe, and other signs of trade and vocation. The proud black line formed a semi-circle from stand to stand. The line opened and into its center came the triumphant truck bearing a serious and a familiar figure. It was a colored man known to the large body of the alumni present who all became silent and still in tribute to him. He was presented in these words to Col. Albert L. Cox, President of the Alumni Association, who had also mounted the large truck for the presentation occasion.

"Mr. President, we have the honor to present a dusky son of the Old South and a loyal janitor of the Old East and West, a man known and loved by more alumni than any colored man in North Carolina. We present him in the name of the long line of University men whose clothes he washed, whose rooms he swept, whose water he brought, and whose sleep he broke. Though he waked us, yet have we loved him. Greater love have no men than this that they love the man who waked them on wintry mornings. Bill McDade has waked more white men than any colored man in the history of North Carolina. He has waked more sons of the University than any other man save the bugle boys who sounded their reveillés to sleeping armies. Never fear, Bill, the bugle times of war have gone and in these piping times of peace your record as the champion waker of University men will remain unbroken until Gabriel blows his horn and wakes a sleeping world for the great tomorrow.

"Here today, Mr. President, in the presence of the sheltered sun to whose setting he is resigned without quitting, with his hand on the job but with his faithful face set toward waking on the morrow morn, we present him by virtue of his honesty, his courtesy, and his loyalty as a Carolina man, for the honorary degree of broom master-of-arts, honored by his own folk, loved by Carolina folk—Bill McDade."

President Cox thereupon with solemn graciousness inducted Bill into the noble order of the basket and presented him with the marks of the knighthood of the broom. Bill, with tears streaming down his face, in a few deeply grateful words spoke the loyalty and personal affection of a life for more than forty years devoted to his University boys. The gates opened and the black men passed out to do better their day's work for this recognition of their part and their worth.

The Chariot Race

To the marshalling of Bob Hanes ten chariots gathered and the charioteers came forth into the arena. The chariots were the mud scrapers from the new athletic field. The spirited steeds were most muley mules. The charioteers were volunteers from the classes from 1922 to 1862—1862 by proxy, Fronberger '23, who soon proved that he is a mule driver as well as a cheer leader. In the mad race across the field and back, Wiley Hassell Mann Pittman, '07, who still holds the Carolina record in the shot put, put his team of mules across in record time. Crown the winners: Pittman!!! Barker!! Fronberger! (by courtesy of the class of 1862).

Then the Rest

The class of 1902 adjourned a ball game sine die to have a picture taken. The faculty tied the seniors. The class of 1921 rushed on the field with its captured bull, threw a helpless victim astride and raced around the field in gleeful triumph. Emerson Field gave way to the faculty reception on the green under Davie Poplar—may it always be there!

The rest of the day belongs to the class banquets, the mammoth barbecue of Dean Howell's to the Pharmacy alumni, the Pharmacy banquet at the Cafeteria pepped along by Toastmaster Norman Lynch, and the women's banquet celebrating the twenty-fifth year since Mary MacRae of Fayetteville entered the University of North Carolina, the Hinton James of the new era. Mary MacRae, now Mrs. R. L. Gray, still the record pupil of the Fayetteville schools, was toastmaster and laughmaster of the evening. Talks were also made by Mrs. M. H. Stacy, adviser of women, Miss Adeline Denham, Miss Mary Henderson and Miss Kathrine Robinson. A treasured souvenir of the quarter of a century anniversary of woman's entrance into the University is a booklet prepared by Miss Louise Venable, chairman of the committee, of all the names, addresses, and records of women who have attended the University. The keynote of the reunion was the need of a woman's building. Already it is rising from the hearts of the people.

Curtain Fall

Banquets over, then the Carolina Folk-plays and community chorus by which a notable Alumni Day made a worthy and delightful exit into commencement history.

B. R. LACY, JR., PREACHES BACCALAUREATE SERMON

Injecting the same youthful vigor and enthusiasm into his baccalaureate sermon which he injected into his connection with the 113th Field Artillery in France, where he won the title of "Fighting Parson," Rev. B. R. Lacy, Jr., of the Central Presbyterian Church of Atlanta, Ga., told the capped and gowned candidates for degrees at the 127th commencement of the University how to steer a successful course through the deep water of spiritual unrest.

Taking for his text the statement of Paul, "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus," Mr. Lacy called upon the members of the class to take their places among those who follow the Christ and advance His kingdom however hard the fight might prove. Mr. Lacy was introduced by President Chase, and the invocation was offered by Rev. Walter Patten, of the Methodist church.

At twilight, under the Davie Poplar, Rev. W. D. Moss, of the Presbyterian church, conducted the final vesper service of the year.

CLASS DAY EXERCISES HELD

Calling his classmates together at 9:30 Monday morning, June 12, for the final prayers, James Phipps, president of the class of 1922, set in motion exercises which were to terminate the class' dominance of the campus and pass on its control to the members of 1923. Professor Horace Williams was the speaker and his theme was the passion for truth and religion.

Following the chapel exercises, President Phipps delivered his farewell address to the class and President Chase conducted the Mangum oratorical contest of which Bryant C. Brown, of Jacksonville, was the winner. The four members of the class contesting and their subjects were: Leonard Epstein, of Goldsboro—"The University and the State"; T. L. Warren, of Lenoir—"The Old University and the New"; Bryant C. Brown, of Jacksonville—"A Struggle for Self Defense"; and Felix A. Grissett, of Lenoir—"Woodrow Wilson."

At 5:30 the final exercises were held under the Davie Poplar. The program consisted of "Class Statistics," by J. L. Apple; "Class History," by Felix A. Grissett; "Class Prophecy," by Miss Nina Cooper; "Last Will and Testament," by G. B. Porter; "Class Gift," by T. L. Warren. The pipe of peace went the rounds for a final smoking; C. U. Smith, Miss Adeline Denham, C. H. Ashford, Howard Holderness, R. G. Koontz, C. L. Moore, and Miss Mary Yellott were initiated into Phi Beta Kappa; and Garland Porter, president of the student body, lowered the flag, turning the campus over to his successor, J. O. Harmon, and the class of '23. At 4 o'clock the class had been the guests of President and Mrs. Chase at an afternoon reception.

SUMMER SCHOOL HAS BANNER ENROLLMENT

The thirty-fifth session of the University Summer School, with Acting-Dean N. W. Walker, of the School of Education as director, opened on June 20th with the largest enrollment in its history. At the close of registration on Monday, the 26th, 1327 students were in attendance, of whom more than 200 were registered in the Graduate School. All of the dormitories on the campus, including B and C recently finished, are occupied by women, and the town is running over with men who were not admitted to the campus. A large faculty is giving instruction and the work of the School promises to be the most successful in its history.

NEW BUILDINGS NAMED

Names for the new buildings now being completed or under construction were recommended by the Building Committee and adopted by the Trustees as follows: Law building—Manning hall; Language building—Murphy hall; History and Social Science building—Saunders hall; Dormitory B—Grimes; Dormitory C—Manly; Dormitory D—Mangum; Dormitory E—Ruffin. Dormitory B (Grimes) was used by alumni at commencement and Dormitory C (Manly) will be in use for the summer School.

SENATOR GLASS SPEAKS TO THE GRADUATES

In an address, admittedly unusual in its subject matter, but exceedingly informing in its content, Carter Glass, chairman of the committee on banking of the House of Representatives during the early part of Woodrow Wilson's administration, later Secretary of the United States Treasury, and now a member of the United States Senate, explained to the 192 men and women who received their degrees on commencement day, June 14, the way in which the Federal Reserve system was brought into existence in the United States, and with a sincerity rarely equaled in a commencement address, called upon them to exemplify in their lives the high virtues of honesty and patriotism.

Honorary Degrees Conferred

Dr. Archibald Henderson, chairman of the faculty committee on public occasions, was spokesman in the conferring of six honorary degrees. In fitting phrase, he presented for the degree of doctor of laws Cameron Morrison, Governor of North Carolina; David Franklin Houston, Secretary of Agriculture and of the Treasury under Woodrow Wilson; William Robert Webb, headmaster of the Webb School and former United States Senator from Tennessee; W. P. Bynum, chairman of the executive committee of the American Bar Association; for honorary doctor of pharmacy E. V. Zoeller, chairman of the State Board of Pharmacy; and for doctor of divinity, Charles E. Maddy, '02, Corresponding Secretary of the State Board of Missions of the North Carolina State Baptist Convention.

Features of the Day

Other features of the day which made it notable were a brief address to the graduating class by Governor Morrison, the awarding of twenty-eight advanced degrees by the Graduate School; the announcement by President Chase of the establishment of the School of Engineering (consisting of the departments of Civil and Electrical Engineering) under the direction of Dean G. M. Braune; the recommendation by the Trustees of the establishment at Chapel Hill of a four-year medical school and memorial hospital; the donation of the Graves property and $10,000 in cash, by Mr. John Sprunt Hill, for the erection of a University hotel; and the establishment of the Marvin Carr medal in Chemistry by General Julian S. Carr.

The exercises were preceded with the usual academic procession from Alumni building to Memorial hall, and the invocation was offered by Rev. Walter Patten of the local Methodist church. At the conclusion of Senator Glass' address, President Chase made the following announcements:

Changes in the Faculty

Dr. George Howe, for three years dean of the College of Liberal Arts, resigned to devote his full time to the department of Latin. He is succeeded by Dr. James Finch Royster, of the department of English.

Resignations—L. A. Williams, Professor of School Administration; J. H. Mustard, Professor of Electrical Engineering; H. B. Anderson, Associate Professor of Pathology; J. B. Woosley, Assistant Professor of Economics; J. J. Davis, Assistant Professor of Romance Languages; N. M. Paull, Assistant Professor of Drawing; Albert Bachmann, Instructor in German; C. D. Beers, Instructor in Zoology; J. B. Davis, Instructor in Mathematics; H. G. Baity, Instructor in Mathematics; Carl Weigand, Instructor in Music; John H. Bradley, Jr., Instructor in Geology; F. R. Flournoy, Assistant Professor of History; G. K. G. Henry, Assistant Professor of Latin; I. V. Giles, Instructor in Chemistry; H. F. Latshaw, Instructor in Latin

Promotions in Rank—Kent J. Brown, from Associate Professor of German to full Professor; C. T. Murchison, from Associate Professor of Business Economics to full Professor.

Leaves of Absence

The following men return on September first from a year's leave of absence: H. M. Wagstaff, Professor of History, on leave on the Kenan Foundation; H. H. Staab, Associate Professor of Romance Languages.

The following men are recommended for leave of absence for 1922-1923: G. A. Harrer, Associate Professor of Latin, leave on the Kenan Foundation, for the purpose of studying Roman Civilization in Europe; Oliver Towles, Professor of French, leave on the Kenan Foundation, for the purpose of studying in France; Kent J. Brown, Associate Professor of German, for the purpose of studying in Germany; J. B. Linker, Instructor in Mathematics, for the purpose of studying Mathematics; F. H. Koeh, Professor of Dramatic Literature, for the fall quarter of 1922-23.

Additions to the Faculty

Robert Ervin Coker, B. S. Ph.D., Professor of Zoology; Marion Rex Trabue, A. B. Ph.D., Professor of Education; Henry Dexter Learned, A. B. Ph.D., Associate Professor of Romance Languages; Edmund Brown, Jr., A. M. Ph.D., Associate Professor of Transportation and Marketing; Floyd Henry Allport, A. B. Ph.D., Associate Professor of Psychology; Roy Bowman McKnight, A. B. M. D., Assistant Professor of Pharmacology; Macon Reed, M. A., Assistant Professor of Latin; Albert A. Shapiro, A. B. Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Spanish; Corydon P. Spruill, A. B. B. Litt., Assistant Professor of Economics; Ernest T. Browne, Assistant Professor of Mathematics; Charles R. Bagley, A. B. A. M. B. Litt., Instructor in French; Frederick James Hurley, A. B., Instructor in Spanish; T. M. McKnight, A. B., Instructor in Spanish; William B. Harrell, A. B., Instructor in Economics; Gerald McCarthy, A. B., Instructor in Geology; David L. Sheldon, Instructor in Music.

Medals, Prizes, and Fellowships

Medals and prizes were awarded as follows:

The William Cain prize in Mathematics, not awarded in 1922; the Eben Alexander prize in Greek, A. F. Raper; the Early English Text society prize, A. T. Johnson; the Callaghan scholarship prize in Law, C. L. Nichols; the Ledoux fellowship in Chemistry, not awarded at this time; the Kerr prize in Zoology, B. E. Lohr; the Bradham prize in Pharmacy, Beatrice Averitt; the Hunter Lee Harris medal, Yasuo Takeomi; the Ben Smith Preston cup, C. J. Parker, Jr.; the Julian S. Carr fellowship, C. C. Poindexter; the Burdick prize in Journalism, R. S. Pickens; the Stanton-Byrd-McKinnon memorial medal in Freshman English, J. O. Bailey; the Mildred Williams Buchan scholarship in Philosophy, W. W. Stout; the William J. Bryan prize in Political Science, F. M. Green; the Archibald Henderson prize in Mathematics, M. A. Hill; the Graham Kenan fellowship in Philosophy. Awards from the fund (1922), P. E. Greene, Adeline Denham, T. C. Taylor. For travel in Europe (1922-1923), P. E. Greene; the American Law Book company prize in legal research, C. L. Nichols; the Bingham prize, Victor Young; the Mangum medal, B. C. Brown.

Elected to membership in the Phi Beta Kappa society, 1922: Calvin Upshur Smith, president; Adeline Denham, secretary; Charles Hall Ashford, Howard Holderness, Rufus Gwyn Koontz, Clifton Leonard Moore, Mary Traill Yellott.

Elected to associate membership in the Society of Sigma Xi, 1922: Charles Dale Beers, William Darby Glenn, Jr., Harry Franklin Latshaw.

Certificates—Geology—T. G. Murdock; German—C. E. Howard; History—D. J. Whitener; History and Government—W. J. Barefoot, C. G. Lee, Jr., S. M. Wheelbee; Latin—Sallie Allen; honors in Language and Literature—G. B. Porter.

ALUMNAE HOLD REUNION BANQUET

The alumnae present in Chapel Hill to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the admission of women to the University, together with those of the girls now in college who stayed through commencement, wound up the festivities of Alumni Day, June 13, with a dinner at Russell Inn. In addition to the attractive hand-painted place-cards, there was at each plate a copy of the booklet issued for the occasion by the Woman's Association and containing the first published roster of women students in the University from 1897 up to the present time. Another distinctive feature was the serving of the dinner by six pretty Camp Fire Girls dressed in white.

The success of the evening was in great measure due to the presence of the "first coed," Mrs. Robert L. Gray, who acted as toastmistress and gave a delightful account of her experiences during that first year. One of the interesting things brought out in Mrs. Gray's talk was the fact that during the year the one woman in the senior class, Miss Sallie Stockard (now Mrs. Magnus), held the balance of power in the election of senior president. The class was divided evenly and each side tried to persuade her to give it her proxy, but she insisted on doing her own voting and after due consideration cast the deciding vote.

Other speakers were Miss Adeline Denham, retiring president of the Woman's Association, who welcomed the alumnae; Mrs. M. H. Stacy, who followed Mrs. Gray's account of the first year with a resumé of events of the past session and plans for the future; Miss Kathrine Robinson, who spoke of women in the professions; and Miss Mary Henderson, who talked of the present political status of women and the possibilities for the future.

Since at the meeting of the General Alumni Association Miss Henderson had voiced their plea for a woman's building at the University, the alumnae considered it unnecessary to pass any resolutions in regard to this proposition, though the best means of furthering it were discussed and much appreciation and enthusiasm were shown over the promise made at the Alumni Luncheon by the newly-elected president of the Alumni Association, Hon. Walter Murphy, to give it his active support in the next legislature.

Those attending the dinner were Misses Sallie Allen, Mabel Bacon, Elizabeth Branson, Cordelia Camp, Marie Clegg, Mary Cobb, Nina Cooper, Lillie Cutlar, Adeline Denham, Martha Doughton, Mrs. Arthur D. Rees, Mrs. I. H. Manning, Mrs. R. L. Gray, Mrs. M. H. Stacy, Mrs. A. P. Russell, Mrs. H. C. Heffner, Mrs. Lee J. Shine, Mrs. H. F. Latslaw, Misses Annie Duncan, Dorothy Foltz, Marguerite Ghent, Dorothy Greenlaw, Mary Henderson, Annie Bell Hill, Ellen Lay, Frances Gray, Elizabeth McKie, Rennie Peele, May Belle Penn, Nell Pickard, Minna Pickard, Vera Pritchard, Lina Pruden, Annie Pruitt, Nellie Roberson, Kathrine Robinson, Dorothy Russell, Lou Shine, Mary Spruill, Alma Stone, Laura Thompson, Jane Toy, Pauline Uzzell, Vallie Uzzell, Frances Venable, Louise Venable, Lillie Whitaker, Ida Ledbetter, Grace Duncan, Ernestine Kennette, and Mary Yellott.

Greetings to the other alumnae and regrets at their inability to come to the reunion were received from Miss Julia Alexander, Mrs. L. L. Brinkley, Miss Mary Amburgey, Mrs. Elizabeth Babbitt, Miss Harriet M.

Berry, Dr. Cora Corpening, Miss Julia Dameron, Mrs. J. A. McRae, Mrs. T. H. Partrick, Misses Julia Harris, Winnie McGlamery, Anna Forbes Liddell, Helen L. Odum, and Bessie L. Whitaker, and Mrs. J. Ravenel Smith.

PHARMACISTS HAVE GALA OCCASION

Back on the Hill in numbers and pledging their loyalty to Alma Mater, alumni of the School of Pharmacy joined in with the other sons and daughters of the University to make Alumni Day notable and particularly to celebrate in fitting fashion the 25th anniversary of the founding of the School.

Two events other than participation in the meeting of the General Alumni Association featured the day. At 4:30 in the afternoon Dean E. V. Howell was host to the visitors on his lawn. Barbecue a la Foy Baker, Brunswick stew, slaw, pickles, French bread, and lemonade were served; college yells were given; a group picture was taken; and the party ended in a happy dance.

At nine o'clock in the evening the scene shifted to the University cafeteria where Norman W. Lynch, '05, of Charlotte, presided as toastmaster over the reunion banquet. Beatrice Averitt, '22, welcomed the visitors, J. W. Harrell, Jr., '21, spoke for the School, and Almond P. Westbrook, '23, spoke for the William Simpson Pharmaceutical Society. N. D. Bitting, '04, spoke for the alumni who have become physicians; W. C. Bateman, '04, spoke for the druggists who are traveling salesmen in the interest of drug firms; and I. W. Rose, '06, spoke for the alumni druggists. Other speakers were Polk C. Gray and R. T. Gregory, members of the first class matriculating in pharmacy in 1897; Roger A. McDuffie, '15, Dorothy Foltz, '20, Addie L. Bradshaw, '22, C. D. Bradham, C. M. Andrews, '07, Kelly E. Bennett, '12, Sam Welfare, '05,

J. E. Turlington, '16, F. W. Hancock, Secretary-Treasurer, North Carolina Board of Pharmacy, E. V. Zoeller, President of the Board of Pharmacy, who was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Pharmacy on Commencement Day, J. G. Beard, '09, in behalf of the students in Pharmacy this year presented to Dean Howell an Elgin watch and chain with the inscription: To Dean Howell, from the classes of 1921, 1922, 1923, for faithful service 1897-1922.

About one hundred were in attendance at the reunion, and resolutions were passed to make it a biennial affair. The following alumni and members of the School were present:

Sam E. Welfare, Winston-Salem, '05; A. M. Gibson, Gibson, '21; W. A. Prout, Webster, Ky., '21; E. B. Bristow, McColl, S. C., '22; G. W. Waters, Jr., Goldsboro, '11; Kelly E. COMMENT ON THE CAMPUS MAP

Dr. J. M. Booker has handed THE REVIEW the following letter received by him from James A. White, supervising architect of the University of Illinois, concerning the map of the campus which appeared in the May issue. Coming as it does from a man who has in hand the development of the campus of an institution which contemplates ultimately the instruction of 30,000 students (the number is now between 8,000 and 10,000) it is extremely suggestive.

I have chanced to see the May ALUMNI REVIEW which contains your suggested plan for the development of the University of North Carolina. Having been directly connected with the development of our campus for thirty years, I am of course very much interested in knowing of people who are thinking along these lines. You are to be congratulated in having McKim, Mead and White associated with you on your campus work, because they have probably had more experience in this class of planning than any other firm in the country, and the development suggested by them as shown in your plan is good. May I suggest to you some conclusions which we have come to in connection with our development here?

First, we agree with you that classroom buildings should be fairly standardized, which is also true of science buildings, and we now are preparing plans for a standard classroom building, having a 300' frontage, which we shall expect to repeat with enough modifications in exterior design to avoid monotony, at several points on our campus.

We are not zoning our campus by colleges. That has been our practice but we have come to feel that it is more necessary to zone the campus with reference to instructional subjects rather than with reference to colleges. We do not know when a new college or school will be added and we cannot lay out a plan which will provide specific areas for future colleges, but we can say that all general subjects taught to all students in their freshmen and sophomore years can be taught in a central group of buildings, eliminating the loss of time to these students in traveling between more distant groups of buildings. We can then in a zone around this group provide for instruction in subjects programmed for longer class periods; and finally, in an outlying zone we can provide special buildings where senior and graduate students may devote a half or a whole day at a time to specific work. In other words, as we expand we find that the making up of the program is a far more vital consideration than the keeping of all the work of a college together.

We are just starting to build on a 60 acre tract, joining our main quadrangle on the south. We are arranging our buildings so they cover about 25% of the ground area, and we are using rather large buildings. The buildings will average four stories in height and therefore the gross building area will be equal to the ground area. At present we have in class and laboratory buildings 135 square feet of floor space per student.

We are going to build standard buildings on this 60 acres except for the new Library and the Administration building, and we are simply flowing southward over this area, filling new buildings to their capacity as rapidly as they are finished, grouping the work of the departments as closely together as possible but ignoring very largely any grouping of colleges.

We are segregating men and women in our dormitory plan by putting the women's dormitories on the east side of the campus, and are planning for the men's housing on the west side where all of the fraternities are now located.

I have never felt that the Library properly belonged in the middle of a campus. Its location should be where the maximum number of students will pass it going from their home to their academic buildings, making it convenient for them to drop in, and also making it much more accessible for night study, which is going to be more and more necessary as our institutions expand.

I, of course, know nothing of your problem and I am not undertaking to criticize, but merely desire to present some thoughts which have come to my mind in reading your communication and in studying the plan presented therewith.

Yours very truly,

JAMES M. WHITE, Supervising Architect.

GRAHAM MEMORIAL BUILDING UNDERWAY

Plans approved by the Trustees at commencement provide for the location of the Graham Memorial Building on the west edge of the old Inn lot, with the main front looking across the campus towards the Vance-Pettigrew dormitories and a formal entrance on Franklin street. The T. C. Atwood organization, together with Mr. Kendall, of McKim, Meade, and White, are drawing the preliminary sketches, and the committee is calling for the payment of all subscriptions now due and is soliciting new subscriptions in order that the entire $150,000 required for the erection of the first unit may be immediately in hand.

The building, which will be a two-story structure of colonial style, will contain a large lounge and reading rooms, offices for the student publications, musical organizations, county clubs, class groups, and other bodies, and facilities for serving group banquets and other features essential to the social life of the student body.

As stated, the first unit is to cost $150,000 of which $123,000 has been subscribed and $63,000 is in hand. The remaining $60,000 is being called for now, and the committee in charge is seeking an additional $50,000 in new subscriptions.

The building will admit of almost unlimited expansion either along the east and west walk way between the Inn and Alumni hall, or it may be extended in the form of a quadrangle towards the Barbee property on the east. The grounds surrounding it are to be treated as a formal garden, and it will permanently define the east entrance to the campus.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA PRESS INCORPORATES

The formal incorporation of the University of North Carolina Press on Monday night, June 12, brings into being an agency that will do much to enhance the prestige of the University as well as to provide a medium of publication to scholars whose work would not otherwise receive recognition.

At present the Press is an institution without financial resources. It is to be hoped that this fault will be cured before long. To visualize what such an organization may mean to the University it is necessary only to recall what other university presses, such as those at Yale, Princeton, Harvard and Chi-ago, have accomplished. Toward the latter end of his presidency of Yale, Mr. Hadley declared that he regarded the development of the Yale Press as the greatest single achievement of his administration.

Those who are not familiar with the character of a University Press are apt to think of it as a printing concern. It is not this at all, but a publisher. It may have its own printing equipment, if it is fortunate enough, but it may have its printing done outside just as some magazine and book publishers do.

The Elisha Mitchell Journal, Studies in Philology, The High School Journal, and other publications of the University are to be issued in the name of the University of North Carolina Press.

The incorporators include three Trustees, Zeb. V. Walser, Alfred M. Seales, and Leslie Weil; President H. W. Chase, and the following nine members of the faculty who are intimately connected with University publications: W. C. Coker, Louis Graves, Edwin Greenlaw, J. G. de R. Hamilton, L. P. McGehee, H. W. Odum, C. D. Snell, N. W. Walker, and L. R. Wilson.

L. P. McGehee is temporary chairman of the Board of Governors, pending permanent organization in the fall. Edwin Greenlaw is chairman of an emergency committee, to sanction this summer, charged with deciding upon the publications that shall bear the name of the University of North Carolina Press.

THE NORTH CAROLINA LAW REVIEW

The North Carolina Law Review, published by the faculty and students of the School of Law of the University, made its initial appearance on Thursday, June 8th. This Review is the only periodical of its kind in the Carolinas, and shares with the Virginia Law Review the distinction of being one of the two in the south. It will appear regularly in November, January, April, and June, of each school year.

The Review is devoted to the discussion of important problems of law of interest to North Carolina lawyers and judges. The bulk of the material deals with the significance of recent decisions of the supreme court of North Carolina and of the supreme court of the United States. Particular attention will be paid to matters of legislation and to the relationship between the social sciences of economics, political science, and sociology, and the science of law.

The first number consists of sixty pages of reading matter and four pages of advertising, bound in a soft French grey paper cover. In the size of the pages and in the arrangement of the material, the Review represents a departure from the stereotyped form of legal periodicals. Six hundred copies of the first number have been printed. These are being distributed to the students of the School of Law, to a number of the lawyers and judges of North Carolina, to the law schools that are members of the Association of American Law Schools, and to the legal periodicals with which the Review will be exchanged. The subscription price is two dollars a year, or fifty cents a copy.

The editorial staff consists of Professor M. T. Van Hecke, editor-in-charge, and Professors L. P. McGehee, A. C. McIntosh, P. H. Winston, and R. H. Wetach, as associate editors. The student editors for this number, selected by the faculty for excellence in scholarship, were: Clarence G. Ashby, Robert H.

Frazier, Wade A. Gardner, David W. Isear, Benjamin Bailey Liipfert, Fred B. McCall, Ralph M. Moody, Charles L. Nichols, Neal Y. Pharr, Richmond Rucker, William T. Shaw, and Granberry Tucker.

The leading articles of the current issue are as follows: Statute Law and the Law School, by W. F. Dodd, of the Chicago Bar; Changes in North Carolina Procedure, by Professor A. C. McIntosh; Trade Associations and the Sherman Act, by Professor Homer Hoyt; Shares of Stock Without Par Value, by J. H. Pou, of the Raleigh Bar. Editorial notes and comments comprising twenty or more short articles by various members of the faculty and student body are found in the issue under the two headings "Editorial Notes" and "Comments."

DRURY PHILLIPS MAKES SUGGESTION

Drury M. Phillips, of the class of 1908, who lives at 1701 8th St., Port Arthur, Texas, writes as follows:

I have one suggestion with regard to the present organization of the General Alumni Association. I notice that all the officers and all the members except one of the executive committee are residents of North Carolina at this time. It is of course eminently proper that the large majority of them should be residents of the State, but it has recently seemed to me advisable for a broader field of representation.

The University of North Carolina is now a national institution; its alumni live in every state and in many foreign lands; its students come from wide-spread areas; its activities are all embracing. Would it not be helpful to Carolina if her sons in New York, Georgia, Texas, and Alaska, for instance, kept closer to her? And would not more active participation in the great ideals of the General Alumni Association help both the institution and the individual?

My suggestion is this—five more members of the executive committee, one each from the northeastern, southeastern, southwestern, central western and extreme western regions of the United States. Even if members from far away places could attend meetings only rarely, they could be kept more closely in touch with alumni affairs and could in turn serve the scattered Carolina men in their regions.

WOMEN LEAD THE PHARMACISTS

At the examination of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy held at Raleigh June 15 and 16 the following graduates of the School of Pharmacy of the University were successful in obtaining their license: Miss Beatrice Averitt, Fayetteville; Miss Addie L. Bradshaw, Lenoir; G. C. Siske, Pleasant Garden; M. L. Jacobs, Morrisville; Ernest E. Moore, Granite Falls; and W. L. Stone, Kittrell.

It is interesting to note in this connection that the only two women passing the examination were the two coeds who graduated this year from the School of Pharmacy and that these two made the highest general averages of all the applicants for license, Miss Beatrice Averitt being awarded the Beal Prize for making the highest grade received.

For the first time the new pharmacy law exacting graduation of all applicants becomes effective, so that at the recent examination only those who had completed the college course of training were eligible to go before the board.

TRUSTEES RECOMMEND FOUR-YEAR MEDICAL SCHOOL

One of the most interesting steps taken by the Board of Trustees at their June meeting was the passing of a resolution authorizing the organization and location of a four-year medical school, with necessary hospital facilities, at Chapel Hill. The movement contemplates the addition of two years to the present medical course and the erection and equipment of a 200-bed hospital to cost $750,000 in memory of North Carolinians who died in the service. The action followed the submission of a report prepared on the subject by a committee appointed some time ago, and brings to a head a matter which has recently received the widest sort of consideration on the part of North Carolina physicians.

Some of the most important considerations on which the action is based are: (1) That North Carolina is sadly under-equipped with both physicians and hospitals. At present the State has only one physician and one hospital bed for 1600 and 761 people respectively, while the averages for the country as a whole are 720 and 340. (2) That owing to the limited capacity of the medical colleges of the country, many of the students who complete in North Carolina the two-year medical courses experience great difficulty in finding room in medical colleges in other sections. (3) That the cost of from four to six years of study and internship in medical schools and hospitals located in large cities entails a total expense of from $5000 to $7000 which cannot be met by the physician who is to serve a rural section.

In the absence of Governor Morrison, Major John W. Graham presided over the commencement meeting of the Board of Trustees which was held at 4 o'clock, June 13, in Chemistry hall. The following members, in addition to President Chase and Mr. Woollen, were present:

B. L. Banks, Thos. H. Battle, Kelly E. Bennett, W. H. S. Burgwyn, Perrin Busbee, B. Cameron, Julian S. Carr, Fred J. Coxe, Burton Craige, W. R. Dalton, Josephus Daniels, J. L. DeLaney, Claudius Dockery, William Dumm, Jr., A. H. Eller, R. O. Everett, W. N. Everett, J. T. Exum, John W. Fries, E. L. Gaither, Jno. W. Graham, A. H. Graham, G. K. Grantham, J. Bryan Grimes, L. T. Hartsell, C. F. Harvey, John Sprunt Hill, W. L. Hill, Geo. A. Holderness, W. Stamps Howard, Maxey L. John, Chas. A. Jonas, J. C. Kittrell, B. K. Lassiter, Richard H. Lewis, Stahlé Linn, H. M. London, A. G. Mangum, J. H. McMullan, Jr., Walter Murphy, Henry A. Page, J. J. Parker, Haywood Parker, J. H. Pearson, Jr., W. M. Person, A. H. Price, James D. Proctor, R. B. Redwine, A. M. Scales, A. Alex Shuford, Geo. Stephens, W. F. Taylor, Dorman Thompson, E. J. Tucker, Leslie Weil, Chas. Whedbee, B. B. Williams, J. K. Wilson, Francis D. Winston, Graham Woodward, A. E. Woltz, and Clem G. Wright.

LIBRARY RECEIVES NEWSPAPER FILES

Through the addition of two collections of files of North Carolina newspapers to the University library, the source of material for the use of present and future writers of North Carolina history has been definitely enlarged. The eighty-four volumes which comprise the two collections are the gifts of Mrs.

Henry A. London, of Pittsboro, and Dr. James Sprunt, of Wilmington.

Mrs. London is the giver of 39 volumes of The Chatham Record, edited by the late Major Henry A. London, and the set is supplemented by volumes forty to forty-two issued under the editorship of her son, Henry M. London, legislative reference librarian, of Raleigh. The period covered is from 1878 to 1920, the file being particularly rich in the field of civil war data contributed by Major London from his intimate knowledge of the Confederacy.

The collection presented by Dr. Sprunt contains 42 volumes and covers a period of forty-seven years as follows: The Wilmington Journal (weekly) 1846-1868; The Daily Journal, 1853-76; and The Daily Review, 1876-1890.

All the volumes are splendidly bound and are being made available to the students and writers of history. Their acquisition at this particular time is most fortunate as they will advance materially the work of a number of investigators and particularly that of Dean M. C. S. Noble, of the School of Education, who, under the direction of the North Carolina Historical Commission, is writing the history of education in North Carolina from 1840 to 1920.

AUGUSTUS VAN WYCK IS DEAD

Augustus Van Wyck, former supreme court justice of the state of New York, and brother of the late Mayor Robert Van Wyck, of New York, died at Hahnemann hospital on June 9, after an illness of several months.

He was a descendant of a Dutch family which settled in King's county in 1665. He graduated from the University of North Carolina in the class of 1864 and while still in his twenties was elevated to the bench.

He was president of the New York Holland society, the Southern society, the North Carolina society, the New York Alumni Association of North Carolina University and grand master of the Zeta Psi fraternity of North America. In 1898 Judge Van Wyck as the Democratic nominee for governor ran against Theodore Roosevelt, and was defeated by a majority of only about 20,000 votes.

PITTSBORO ROAD ABOUT COMPLETED

Alumni and automobilists will rejoice to know that the north and south highway between Chapel Hill and Pittsboro will be completed within a few weeks, thereby making Chapel Hill easily accessible from points to the south. Recently a large number of cars en route from Florida to northern cities have passed through, and travel to Southern Pines, Sanford, and Charlotte is regularly passing over this route. As now located, the road runs through the campus, between Peabody hall and the Graves property on which the new hotel will be built.

DENTAL SCHOOL ASKED FOR

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees at Commencement a committee was appointed to confer with a committee from the North Carolina Dental Society concerning the establishment by the University of a School of Dentistry.

THE QUARTER CENTURY REUNION OF '97

Lawrence MacRae, of Greensboro, who served as chairman of the '97 reunion committee, writes as follows concerning the twenty-fifth year reunion of this class held at commencement:

Twenty-seven loyal '97 men enrolled at our special headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. Building and were assigned to dormitory B, one of the recently completed fire proof homes for students. Each '97 man was furnished with a '97 hat band, blue and white, and a lapel streamer on which were pinned the class colors, red and black.

Our headquarters were in charge of a young student worker, who acted as registrar, information clerk, and general utility man. Hellenians of the 90's were at hand and the headquarters were made a place of interest and comfort.

Twelve of the boys appeared at the preliminary meeting Monday night, which lasted until a late hour. "Old time days were not forgotten," neither were the absent boys, especially those from whom we had received greetings and regrets.

Tuesday morning at eleven we lined up behind President D. B. Smith and our '97 banner and marched into the alumni meeting where our cheers outrang even the snappy '21 youngsters. We must do better in 1927 and I believe we are set for it. At our class dinner served by Jim Stroud, successor to past worthy feedsters of the Hill, at the "Coop" (the chickens got away so we had steak), we had "Pete" Murphy and Bill (short for Adolphus) Mangum, son of Dolph, as our guests.

The outfeast was followed by a real talkfeast, almost a talk-fuss, for Vick McAdoo wanted to do it all and so did Tobe Connor. Vick's life is now an open book with '97 and Tobe's philosophy is known of all men.

D. B. finally got peace and Billy Carmichael was elevated from the ranks to president of the class, and by chance or through the wisdom of some unknown seer a banker was made treasurer and secretary. This worthy is our old reliable and dependable Archie Long of Haw River.

Each one of us present agreed to send him three dollars as an operating fund, and we spoke for the class—send him your check. He and Billy Carmichael and Lionel Weil have some plans they expect to unfold to you soon, which will indicate we have selected the right bunch to put '97 across and in line with the advanced classes.

All this is addressed particularly to the '97 boys who were "out of luck," including Billy Myers, successor to Woodrow Wilson at Princeton, who could not be with us and revel for a while in the past. We got Billy's wire and, also, greetings from "Skeets" Newby, now of Los Angeles and father of six; and many other messages of good feeling and regret.

These are they who can testify: F. J. Haywood, I. N. Howard, W. W. Boddie, D. W. Carter, V. C. McAdoo, W. J. Horney, W. A. Crinkley, R. R. Ragan, W. D. Carmichael, Robt. H. Wright, L. J. P. Cutlar, J. A. Long, J. L. Everett, D. B. Smith, W. D. Grimes, J. H. Andrews, Dr. P. R. McFadyen, A. T. Allen, W. G. Clark, W. D. Leggett, W. S. Howard, F. H. Bailey, H. G. Connor, Jr., S. B. Shepherd, Burton Craige, Lionel Weil, Lawrence MacRae. Dolph Mangum was recuperating at Watts Hospital, Durham, at the time of the reunion.

NEW HOTEL ASSURED

Carolina Inn, the proposed new hotel for Chapel Hill, is marked down as a certainty as the result of the acceptance at commencement by the University of the offer of Mr. John Sprunt Hill to donate the Graves property and $10,000 for that purpose.

According to the plans of the committee in charge of the undertaking, it is proposed to erect a 40-room building to cost approximately $150,000, with $25,000 more spent in furnishings. Special alumni quarters are to be included and the kitchen and dining room are to be so arranged as to provide for additional numbers who may come in from the outside.

The building will be of colonial design and broad piazzas and a garden of palms are also to be distinctive features.

Plans for the building are now being drawn by the T. C. Atwood organization and within a few days the method by which alumni can subscribe for stock in the enterprise will be announced. All financial arrangements for the building are to be completed by October 12, and the building will be begun and pushed to completion as rapidly as possible after that date.

ENGINEERING SCHOOL ESTABLISHED

The following resolution, presented by the Visiting Committee of the Trustees, and adopted by the full Board, is self-explanatory:

Resolved, That in view (1) of the great development of the engineering profession in this State, and the pressing need for better trained men in all branches of the engineering profession, and (2) for more efficient administration of the work in engineering at the University, it be recommended to the Board of Trustees that the department of Civil Engineering and the department of Electrical Engineering, which have been functioning as parts of the School of Applied Science, be set apart to constitute the School of Engineering, with a proper organization of its own to take care of the problems of present-day engineering education; and further that this division shall date from the time of adoption of this resolution.

As a result of this action, the School of Engineering, under the headship of Dean G. M. Braune, is now being organized, and will be in effective operation at the beginning of the fall term.

CHURCH PLANS GO FORWARD

Announcements concerning the plans of the Baptist, Methodist, and Episcopal churches of Chapel Hill are not unlike text books in science—they are scarcely made before they have to be made over again. The latest reports, however, are that the Baptist church is now well up above the first floor; the Methodists have purchased the entire S. M. Barbee property which they are adding to their present lot; and Mr. W. A. Erwin, of Durham, has given $50,000 for the erection of a new Episcopal church to be located on the east half of the A. S. Barbee meadow adjoining the present church. Plans for the new buildings for the Methodists and Episcopalians are being drafted by James Gamble Rogers and H. B. Upjohn, respectively, architects with home offices in New York, and the buildings will be gotten underway within the next twelve months.

VAN HISE AND GRAHAM

In the Journal of the Proceedings of the National University Extension Association, published in 1922, is the following report of the committee on resolutions presented by H. F. Mallory, of the University of Chicago, former president of the National Association.

"Whereas, Since the last meeting of the National University Extension Association, two educational leaders, President Charles R. Van Hise, of the University of Wisconsin, and President Edward K. Graham, of the University of North Carolina, who have contributed so materially to the development of the university extension movement, have passed from their labors, this body wishes to place on record an expression of its sense and loss."

Then follow two paragraphs compact of the distinguished services of these pioneer leaders in a cause "the significance of which it is impossible yet to measure."

"Coming to an old institution, which by theory and tradition had in common with other southern universities remained aloof from direct contact with the public, President Graham caught a vision of a broader service which the American university, and particularly the state university, is called upon to render. Under his inspiring leadership the University of North Carolina responded heartily to the call to make its boundaries state-wide, and as a result the whole extension movement in the south has been powerfully stimulated. During the war President Graham went still further. He realized with exceptional clearness the true function of the university as an ideal leader of a nation fighting in an ideal cause, and his efforts contributed in no small degree to the making of the noble war record which has done so much to heighten the prestige of American institutions of higher learning as a result of the great crisis through which the nation passed."

OUR SCHOOLS

The position of our institutions of higher learning is being exactly reversed. In old times the University was supposed to cater to the elite. The charge has often been made that it was the institution for rich men's sons though supported by the taxes of the people at large. Its enrollment was limited and its field of operation rather narrow. Under the direction of the lamented Graham the University was democratized. Its course was extended to cover the needs of all classes. The patronage of the school was greatly enlarged. Under that wise policy the University is fast becoming what it should always have been—the school for all classes and conditions of our people; and its appeal for appropriations has been tremendously strengthened. It reaches out now in every direction for the general betterment of our people as a whole and not for the benefit of a favored class. Our denominational colleges have heretofore been the people's colleges. Hence the outstripping of the University in furnishing leaders in our public life of these smaller colleges. But the position of our colleges is being exactly reversed. There is and will always be a great field for usefulness for our smaller colleges supported by the churches, but they must find their patronage from a select class. Their enrollment will be and ought to be limited. Wake Forest ought not to enroll more than 500 boys; and this should be the limit for the other church colleges of the State. The faculty ought always to stand close to the students, which they cannot do in a mass of thousands. The personal element must not be lost in our denominational schools, for this gives them their chief value. These smaller institutions will continue to exert a powerful influence upon the life of the State. But they must be generously endowed in order to live and do their work. Trinity College is safe. Wake Forest, Davidson and the others must have larger financial backing if they are to hold their own in the realm of education. We must endow our colleges or let them die.—Charity and Children, March 23.

BUILDING COMMITTEE REPORTS

Just twelve months ago the University, through its Building Committee, let the contract for the carrying out of the building program authorized by the legislature of 1921. At the meeting of the Board of Trustees on Tuesday, June 13, the committee reported progress as follows:

Completed work—Convict camp, labor camp, 16 dwelling houses, dormitory B, one and one quarter miles of railroad constructed, alterations in Infirmary, Medical building, Power house, Memorial hall, sewage disposal plant, emergency water supply, class athletic field, and seven tennis courts.

It was also reported that dormitories C, D, and E would be completed by August 10, that the History and Social Science building would be completed by September 15, that plans for the Language and Law buildings were completed, and that bids had been received on the heating system for the uncompleted buildings.

DR. ARCHIBALD HENDERSON HONORED

Dr. Archibald Henderson, of the department of Mathematics, received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from Tulane University at the recent commencement of that institution.

—M. B. Aston, of Goldfield, Nevada, writes: "Our honored old alumnus, the late Judge Adolphus Leigh Fitzgerald, '62, has been remembered very conspicuously by his masonic brethren of Nevada and in the very fashion that would most have appealed to him. The Scottish Rite bodies of masonry in Nevada have given the University of Nevada two scholarships to be known as the Adolphus Leigh Fitzgerald scholarships. The world knows how well he deserves this tribute.

"For many years Judge Fitzgerald and I were the only Carolina alumni dwelling in Nevada, and until the first day of March I had felt much alone in this respect since the Judge's death. Thus it was a most pleasant surprise on that day to meet Dr. George A. Carr, '01, formerly of Durham. Returning from a business trip to California, I had stopped at Reno for a day, and impelled by an annoying tooth I sought a dentist, and dropped right into his office, literally into his arms, as it were. Each eyed the other with the feeling that his face was familiar until I asked him whether he was not from North Carolina, and then all was soon made clear. At least one was happy and I

—Capt. William Robert Bond, A.B. 1861, died on June 20 at his home in Scotland Neck, aged 82 years. Capt. Bond entered the service of the Confederacy immediately after graduation and served with gallantry in the four years' hard struggle. When the war was over he returned to his home and entered upon the pursuits of a planter. He wrote a number of articles concerning North Carolina's part in the Civil War. His pamphlet "Pickett or Pettigrew" is perhaps the best known of his writings.

1891

—Benjamin Thorpe Green died suddenly at his home in Franklinton on May 19, aged 51 years. He was a student in the University from 1887 until 1891. He was held in high esteem as a citizen and moving spirit in his home town. He is survived by his wife, three daughters and one son.

1894

—Thomas Christian Wooten died on June 4 at his home in Kinston, 62 years of age. He was a law student in the University from 1892 until 1894. He had been engaged in the practice of law since leaving the University.

1907

—Dr. Arthur Flournoy Jackson, a member of the medical class of 1907 in the University and a former secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., died October 6, 1921, at Philadelphia. Dr. Jackson received the M.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1909. His life was brilliant with accomplishment and his standing among his colleagues was high. While in the University he registered from West Point, Ga.

1910

—Rev. William Hoke Ramsaur, A. B. 1910, died on May 29 in Liberia, where he had served since 1918 as missionary of the Episcopal Church. Mr. Ramsaur survived his wife by only four months, her death having occurred in January of this year. He was president of the Y. M. C. A. in his senior year in the University and was the first secretary of the class of 1910 after the graduation of this class. He was achieving high success in his chosen field of work. News of his death came as a great shock to his many devoted friends.

Where Go To College?

There are three major considerations that determine the greatness, or the potential greatness of an educational institution. These are:

1. The plant, including grounds, library, classrooms, laboratories, and apparatus;
2. The faculty;
3. The student body and its democratic standards.

In addition to the twenty-seven buildings already on the campus of the University of North Carolina, the State of North Carolina is this year putting $1,490,000 into new buildings and equipment. The library of 108,000 volumes is spending $24,000 annually for books and periodicals.

Eight thousand volumes were received in 1921, and 1,005 magazines and learned journals were received on subscription.

The faculty numbers 115 of the country's best scholars.

Speaking of the student body of the University, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, of Yale University, who has spent the major portion of his life studying in four continents, said that, with one exception, it was the most seriously thoughtful and democratic group of students he had ever known.

Registration for fall quarter, September 26-27, 1922.
